

This was to be a year of change, but cooler heads prevailed. We did, however, add a few new features, one of them being the choice of Miss Senior by the men of the editorial staff.

This book has been compiled for you; we hope you enjoy it.

" . . . a man of whom we feel justifiably proud, a friend we can never forget."

CORPORAL ALEXANDER MacMILLAN
United States Marine Corps Reserve.
Killed in action in Korea,
March 22, 1951.

Sandy was the sports editor of the Montclairian and a member of the football team. As a member of the track team, he won the title of Metropolitan Small Colleges' Low Hurdles Champion, which he held for two years.

While at Montclair, Sandy became part of the color that is Montclair, and to those of us who knew him, so he will remain.

Administration

Welcome

It is our privilege to welcome Dr. E. DeAlton Partridge, former Dean of Instruction, to the position of president of our college. For the past fifteen years, he has served on the faculty. In every capacity, both at Montclair and in the service of our country, he has displayed loyalty and sincerity of purpose.

Not the least of his achievements rests in the passage of the New Jersey State Teachers College Bond Issue, for which he worked indefatigably.

To you, Dr. Partridge, the students of Montclair extend deepest appreciation and heartiest congratulations.

Senior Class History

A long time, four years—a long time, until it's almost over. Then, all of a sudden, it's yearbook time and Senior Week—and it fills you with a sudden quiet because somehow you hadn't expected it so soon. Sure, there have been graduations every year—but this year, it's different. This year, it's you . . . and your graduation.

Unexpectedly, you find yourself thinking of leaving . . . remembering that these four years, wonderful years, that seemed so long, one by one, have so easily been telescoped into so little time. You smile a little—because you've fought so hard for that diploma that's finally going to be yours. And maybe you're just a little sad—wondering, remembering—remembering that the end of these four years draws a curtain on the things that have been—and points only to the things yet to be.

You seek the familiar classrooms, the noisy halls, a favorite corner, looking for a dream, one tiny thing, to stir the half-forgotten memories . . . with their touches of joy or sorrow, their touches of laughter or tears. You pick up your yearbook, and as you idly turn the pages, the faces, the pictures, the places once again become very real . . . and bring, with sweet and sudden clarity, the complete recollection of those forgotten memories. And as you lean back and relax in your chair, the time past falls away, and gratefully, you are lost in the World of Remember When . . .

. . . Remember when—you were a Freshman—and pretty green at that. This was a new thing, this College business—and a big thing, too. So you wore a bathing cap and carried an umbrella—thrust upon you by a seemingly sophisticated Sophomore who really seemed to know the score. And you told yourself you were just going along with the gag, not admitting, (even to yourself) that you did it because you wanted so much to be a part of college life.

The campus seemed pretty big and pretty beautiful . . . and you dreamed of spending long, sunny afternoons strolling across the lawn or sitting under the big trees, discussing your philosophy of life or education, or something as equally intellectually stimulating.

Then you were sent to someplace called the Amphitheater, (which turned out to be the side of a hill), and given something called Orientation, (which had absolutely nothing to do with China). You found that you were here "to assimilate a portion of our cultural heritage"—and thoughts of long and lazy afternoons were mixed hazily with terms like "Integration," "Art and Music Appreciation," "survey courses" and above all, "You get four cuts for that class."

The bathing cap and the umbrella were discarded, and you finally found yourself caught in the whirl of college life. You went to classes, (feeling very sagacious), joined clubs, (feeling very worldly), and did homework, (wondering if you'd ever last through four years). You were a member of the first Freshman Class to give a formal, the Winter Whirl with its Snowman center-piece—destined to become many other things.

The newness finally wore off, and you suffered through Bio exams or went to the Planetarium; you quoted Plato or Machiavelli at the drop of a hat and lounged on the stairs of the Ad Building in your spare time. The Snowman grew a pigtail for the Chinese motif of the next formal, and you drank green punch, regained your composure and decided that college was a pretty good deal after all.

It was a warm and beautiful spring, and the sudden thrust of summer brought June—and exams—you wore a broad grin and went around slapping your friends on the back. You'd made it, somehow, jumped the first hurdle—you were a Sophomore.

Yes, you were a Sophomore—and maybe you didn't look a great deal different from a Freshman, but you certainly felt a great deal superior. Initiation was a pleasure this year and over too soon. You shook your head and wondered if you could possibly have been that green—you hid a yawn behind your hand and explained to the inquisitive Freshman that it was impossible to go up to Upper, that Lower Center was always that crowded, that the cigarette machine worked once in a while and the cake machine worked all the time—if you were lucky.

You broadened your cultural background with Political Life and Social Life, met new people, made new friends. You studied hard—drinking gallons of coffee and smoking innumerable cigarettes—depending upon the formal to revive your spirits. It was the first one held off campus—complete with “local talent.” You danced till dawn—and slept through classes for a week.

Sophomore exams came—and you almost went—but you bounced back somehow—and thought that you’d soon be an Upper Classman, that the first half was almost over.

The third September came, and you began the first part of the last lap, your Junior year. You were suddenly confronted with Elementary courses and spent a week observing in the elementary school to get some first-hand information—a little surprised that you liked it so much. You discovered that you were almost anxious for practice-teaching time to roll around. But there was a lot to do before then. You were introduced to lesson plans, unit plans, curriculum set-ups—and Math 300, (which promptly knocked the pins from under you). You stepped “Through The Looking Glass” for the first Junior dance of the year and found yourself saying “It’s been real” and “George.”

The Snack Bar opened and proved to be a good place to spend free time . . . T.V. came to Montclair and so did “Life,” throwing the spot-light of the nation on the crowded conditions—and you told people yes, things were really like that.

You saw Montclair give its first student musical, “Good For Me,” and you filled out cards for student-teacher placement. You went to the Junior Dinner Dance at the Hotel Suburban—feeling very worldly and sophisticated—realizing that it ushered in the end of another year. The big year kept getting closer and you wondered if this could really be you, almost a Senior.

And it was you . . . and you had finally begun the last year. You were glad it had come until you discovered that passing Statistics seemed to be almost impossible. You took Methods and wondered if you were really as inadequate as you felt. You threw yourself whole-heartedly into the support of the Bond Issue—knowing that you would never see its benefits, but realizing its importance to those to come—and for your efforts, you received the only thanks possible—the confidence of the voters of New Jersey and the passing of the Bond Issue.

Yearbook pictures were taken, Senior captions were written and you found out where you were being placed for practice teaching. Then it was December, and it seemed as if every professor had suddenly found a million and one things that had to be done before the middle of January. You burned the midnight oil and managed to get everything done somehow. Then it was time you meet your training-teachers and you realized that practice-teaching was no longer a dream of the future, but a reality to be faced all too soon. Almost as if in preparation for your leaving to go practice-teaching, Lower Center got a new coat of paint, Room B became the new co-ed lounge—and you felt guilty every time you dropped a cigarette butt on the floor.

And then there you were—on your own, your first class, your first responsibility, your first success as a teacher. For three months, you lived the life that was to be your future, and it confirmed your theories and hopes that teaching was really what you wanted. You sweated your way through training-teacher criticisms, professor observations, making lesson plans, handling discipline problems—and then you came back and took Practicum—full of reports of the situation “in the field,” feeling like an authority on the subject.

But the hands of the big clock were ticking away the last moments, and you were caught in the whirl of the Dance, the Picnic, getting yearbook autographs—remembering that it’s almost over—each tick of the clock stealing away a precious minute from the little time that’s left. And you think . . .

. . . A long time, four years—a long time, until it’s almost over. Then, all of a sudden, it’s yearbook time and Senior Week—and it fills you with a sudden quiet because somehow you hadn’t expected it so soon. Sure, there have been graduations every year—but this year, it’s different. This year, it’s you . . . and your graduation.

A black and white photograph of a forest scene. In the foreground, three people are standing on a path or clearing. A man in a suit stands in the center, flanked by two women in light-colored dresses. They are looking towards the right. The background is filled with tall, dark evergreen trees. A building with a gabled roof is visible through the trees on the left. The overall mood is serene and natural.

Classes

Junior Class History

We have cast our bean bags aside—This year we're using pogo sticks! Yes, we're juniors and not unlike those who have gone before us we have had to pause once in a while to reflect on just how it happened. Three years? Where has the time gone? Why it seems that only yesterday we—

Stood on line at the business office—three, four five, hours just so that we could pay our fees and, heaving a sigh of relief, march on to the next line. Our first impressions of M.S.T.C. were merely those of interminable lines. But we survived and found ourselves caught up in a whirl of activity. There was the business of acquiring a new vocabulary—"Civ and Cit," "Integration," "cuts," "Cafe;" these were all things that the regular student body tossed off and we wanted to be "regular" too—so we practised! It seems as if those green and grinning expressions would never wear off, but amidst our first class dances, elections, basketball games, and all the things that freshman year means to you we lost them. We had finally "adjusted."

No sophomore class has ever been staid or sedate and because we had a "why be different?" complex we played and punned and "Georged" with the best of them. Do you remember "The Circus," "Moonlight and Roses," Political and Social Life? These things are hazy, nebulae, somethings in the back of our minds as we contemplate—

Junior Week! This was our first crack at "the field," and just in case we'd thought that it was a figment of some professor's imagination, twenty-five squirming, smiling third graders made us realize how real it was. Every person has one experience which he recalls vividly—maybe it was the first time one of the "kiddies" asked you if he could get a "drink," or the time you wrote that profound statement on the board and the chalk squeaked. Whatever yours is you'll be forced to admit that "Elementary Ed" brought you one step closer to a reality.

We've discovered new things this year—"Psychologists have proven that every child must have a father." The number of bacteria in a quart container will double itself in twenty-four hours if directly compounded on the interest of a $2500 interest bearing note. "A cigarette holder with a built-in-cigarette filter is far superior to any other type on the market today!" Well, whatever it is, the whole thing has been rather confusing. We've just one unanswered question after sixteen semester hours—"Exactly what are the aims and organization of Secondary Education?"

True—we've lived and loved and laughed for three years. It's almost over, but the memories linger on.

Sophomore Class History

Remember the "Skunk Hollow Stomp"? Remember our Freshman Week, when we were the defendants instead of the judges at Ratcourt? It wasn't long ago, really.

But there's no doubt that the eager beavers who staged the "Stomp" last year have grown into refined young men and ladies. For conclusive proof, one needed only to look in on our sophomore dance, the "Ski-Spree." The girls had doffed their dungarees and flapping shirts for more feminine apparel; the masculine components of the class had replaced their garish plaid shirts and cowboy neckerchiefs with the neater attire of suits and ties.

Who can forget our sophomore class elections? There were so many candidates good candidates—from which to choose, that we had a difficult time making our decisions. Howard Mion, Jimmy Spry, Grace Rainey and Lorrie Widmer combined their talents and did a fine job as our class officers. Dolores Schaeffer and Joe Sommer did an equally fine job as sophomore representatives to the S.G.A.

Campaigning for the passage of the Bond Issue was hard work and a time-consuming occupation, but it was fun, too. Any sacrifice of homework or dating was compensated for by the wonderful feeling of accomplishment that swept over the campus after the elections returns were announced.

Planning for our Carnival concession absorbed the greatest part of our spare time this spring. The boxes of Kleenex that so many sophs carried didn't mean that an epidemic of influenza was running rampant on campus—those tissues went into the making of carnations! Is there a girl in the class whose lipstick emerged unmoled from the carnation craze?

A summary of our history should probably tell what it's like to be a sophomore. Is it fun? Is it work? Exactly how does it feel? All of us know that it's fun and work combined; we know that it's different from being a freshman. Being a sophomore means more than just these things—it's a feeling that only a sophomore can know.

Freshman Class History

Greeted with the remark "My! They're growing 'em smaller this year," who wouldn't resent being a freshman? Add the taunting query of "What is the lowest form of animal life?" (to which the only safe answer was "Freshmen!") and you have a vague idea of our "orientation." Then, of course, there were a few small inconveniences—things like the imitations of Mary Marvel, the solo performances of intricate and ridiculous dance routines, and the dreaded atonements at "Ratcourt" for the sin of behaving as though we were normal human beings.

There's a proverb about only remembering the pleasant things—it must be true, because at the Freshman-Sophomore Peace Dance, we promptly forgot the sophomores' "inhumanity to man."

We felt pretty important when we cast our ballots for class officers. The halls echoed with shouts of "Hey, Joe—who's Dick Witt?" and "Is Ruth Hopper the girl in our World Lit class?" A casual observer would think, "What a way to have elections!" And yet, the people who won these elections—Dick Witt, Nancy McLaughlin, Ruth Hopper and Arlene Schmidt have convinced us that months of deliberation couldn't have resulted in better choices.

All of the "kool" freshmen attended our first dance. The decorations were in keeping with the theme of "The Purple Grotto" and everything seemed wonderful to us, from the spider on the ceiling to the music of the band.

Oh, yes, being a freshman can be fun, in spite of classes, cuts, exams, and sophomores. We'll never forget our freshman year—we'll remember our "first exam," our dances, our initiation, and our friends. We may accomplish even more as upperclassmen than we did as "the lowest of the low," but there are some feelings that can occur only once. We've experienced the fortunes and misfortunes of "learning the ropes." Now we know where to find WA-1, room 4; we know the difference between the library's "Subject" and "Author and Title" catalogues, and we've felt the thrill of our first college dance. We can't re-live these things—but we can, and we will, remember them.

Football

Hindered by injuries and lack of experience, Montclair State Teachers College football team did surprisingly well by winning two and dropping three in an abbreviated five-game schedule.

Coach Alden Coder worked hard with a team that proved to have a scoring punch, yet could not combat the powerful machines of the opposition. Plans are being made to arrange a schedule this year against more equal competition.

The Indians began the season by tripping the National Aggies at Doylestown as John MacGregor passed for two touchdowns. The Tribe turned the game into a rout in the fourth quarter; the result at the closing whistle was an impressive 33-7 victory for Montclair. Kutztown Teachers reversed the procedure in the next game, trampling Montclair with a score of 60-21, which was the worst defeat in MSTC's history. The following week, New Britain visited Sprague Field for the only home game of the year. Frosh Andy Nowak scampered 69 yards for a touchdown, and so made the longest run from scrimmage during the grid campaign.

Recovering from a sleeper play which resulted in a touchdown during the opening minute of the game, Montclair rallied to score in every period except the third to crush the New York Aggies. Nowak and MacGregor personally took charge of the Tribe offensive as Nowak tallied twice and MacGregor tossed for two more touchdowns and scored one himself.

After poor weather conditions cancelled the New Haven contest, Montclair played its traditional game with Trenton State. The Golden Lions used a strong rushing attack to wind up their first undefeated season by scalping the Indians.

The team loses four seniors whose absence will be sorely felt. Four-year letterman Tom Testa, co-captain for two years, was one of the finest ends ever produced at Montclair. Bill Nunamacher and John Dugan were standout performers on the line for three years. A campus discovery, Charley Otis, booted 16 extra points in 25 tries during his two campaigns.

A polio scare limited pre-season drills and the overall effectiveness of the squad throughout the 1951 season. Coach Coder did a fine job of instilling spirit and determination in the players. Ably assisting in the coaching department was backfield mentor Bill Diaguardi.

Cross Country

Row 1—Caputo, Nicholas, Barr, Penberthy, O'Dell, Green.

Row 2—Mr. Willing, Canter, Feins, Sengstacker, Burgstaller, Van Heest, Sweeney, Gaynor, Gordon.

Coach Dick Willing and his cross-country squad reported the excellent performances of the 1950 season as Montclair was again rated high among the smaller colleges in the East. The harriers compiled a 7-2 record in their regular meets, losing to two of the strongest opponents, St. John's and Iona.

The crackerjack tracksters gave Montclair a clean sweep in the major NJIAC sports titles by winning easily the conference championship. Dick Gaynor, a three-year veteran, captured first place with the record-breaking time of 25:23.

The Tribesmen were unsuccessful in their attempt to retain the LeMayne Invitation Tournament title. It was a heartbreaking defeat for Montclair as they placed second to Scranton University, a single point separating the schools, 60 to 61.

Montclair would have had a better opportunity to defend its crown had not a dual meet with New Britain on the same day prevented Coach Willing from taking his entire squad.

Against some of the best performers in the area, the MSTC trackmen placed second in the Metropolitan Smaller College Championships. A recapitulation of the season shows victories against Upsala, Fairleigh Dickinson, Queens, St. Peter's, LeMayne, Brooklyn Polytechnic and two triumphs over Bloomfield.

A steadily improving Gaynor was the top performer throughout the campaign. Jim Nicholas, who was impressive in the indoor track season that followed the conclusion of the cross-country season, is the only graduating senior. "Nick" was usually found among the first three or four finishers.

Tribe

The members of Tribe, the varsity lettermen's organization on campus, are among the most active groups at M.S.T.C. Included in Tribe's many activities are the publishing of team schedules, the selling of programs at the various athletic events, and the selling of refreshments at all home football and baseball games. The annual Tribe Dance is one of the highlights of the year at Montclair, as is the Tribe sponsored affair, Future Freshmen Athletes Night.

"Wanna be a booster?" . . . "Any refreshments left over from F.F.A.?" . . . "Who's got the rest of the schedules?" . . . "Soda! Ice cream!" . . .

Fencing

During the past two years, fencing has become one of the major sports at Montclair. The club, under the direction of Coach Allan Griffin, has increased in size as well as in merit.

The fencing team engages in intercollegiate meets, and in addition, sends representatives to compete in the tournaments sponsored by the Amateur Fencers League of America and the Intercollegiate Women's Fencing Association.

The increased interest that has been shown among the members of the group has led to the building of more team spirit and morale. As a result, the performance of the club members has improved greatly.

Basketball

This year the squad has again demonstrated its superior techniques on the basketball court. Combining skill and team-work, the Indians went on to win 18 of their 23 games.

Co-captains Tom Hanlon and Ed Weber, two of the finest players in Montclair's cage history, had the material to back them up. Box Axmann, who has worked for four years on the team, reached the height of his basketball career during the 1951-52 season. Joe Grosso developed his skill tremendously since the beginning of the year, and will help supply the needed height on next year's team. Bill Bushke and Jack Davies will prove indispensable height men for next season, and both have improved steadily in their play. "Ziggie" Kwiatkowski compensates for his lack of height by his ability to set up plays and his fast skillful handling of the ball.

Tom Hanlon's skill, poise and control were of paramount importance to the team. His quick-thinking and resourcefulness are assets which will be difficult to replace next season. The Indians will suffer a double loss if Ed Weber is ruled ineligible by the N.J.I.A.C. next year.

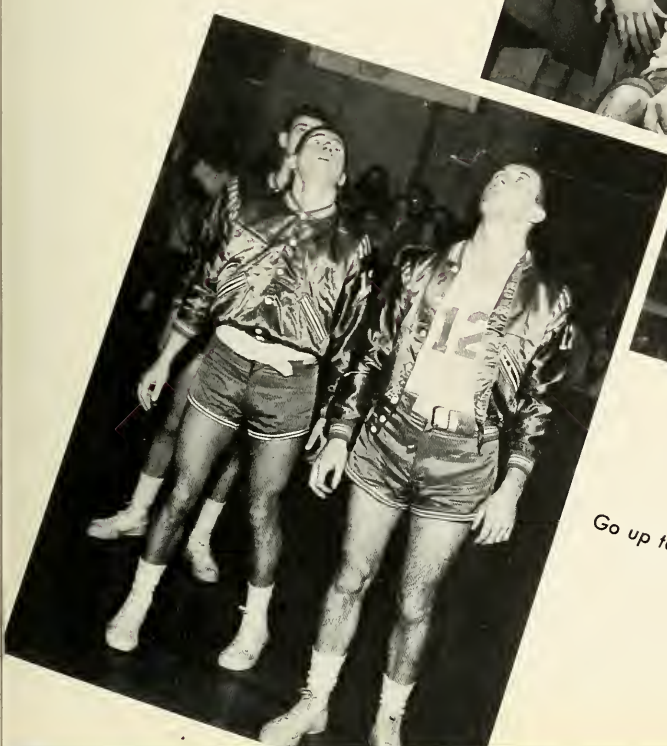

The Indians can look forward to a bright season in 1952-53 because, in addition to the talent already on the varsity, there are definite possibilities in the freshman class.

Men's Tennis

Men's tennis is fast becoming one of M.S.T.C.'s most popular springtime sports. With the return of many of last year's veterans and the addition of new members, the team is looking forward to a successful 1952 season. Tom Hanlon and Nick Steenstra, mainstays of last year's squad, will again add their talent to the team; Hanlon, however, will be ineligible to play in Conference matches.

The schedule includes matches with Fairleigh Dickenson, Panzer, Upsala, Princeton, Trenton State, N.C.E., Rider, and L.I.U.

Women's Tennis

Under the direction of Miss Pauline Foster, the girls of M.S.T.C. have organized a tennis team. Membership is open to any girl who has an interest in the sport.

The club meets every Wednesday, and plans are being formulated to arrange matches with other college teams. The girls have shown that they have ability, and are looking forward to a successful season.

Montclair's baseball team fought their way to an enviable record of seventeen wins against seven losses and two ties during the 1951 season. Coached by Bill Dioguardi, the Indians went on to win the N.J.I.A.C. championship by crushing such teams as Rider, Upsala and Queens.

The newly-inaugurated trip to the south proved highly successful, with the Indians taking three out of four games and gaining the extra advantage of an early start in spring training.

Its purpose is "the fostering, directing and administering of the varsity and intramural sports and activities for men." As the coordinating body for Montclair's entire sports program, the MAC receives an automatic 32% appropriation from the S.G.A.'s annual income.

The bulk of these funds is allocated to the coaches of the various varsity teams according to their needs. The success of our sports program can readily be attributed to the MAC in their unselfish execution of their duties.

Student Government Association

The Student Government Association, whose membership includes the entire MSTC student body, endeavors to foster democratic government of the student body through discussion and planned action. The Board of Trustees, the governing body in the association, is composed of 19 members: six officers chosen by the school; four class presidents; six class representatives; and a faculty adviser and the former SGA president, honorary members.

Recently the Board has initiated the War Memorial Fund, the Carnival and the Student Musical. Responsibilities of the Board include the allotment of necessary funds to all clubs for carrying out term programs, financing the three publications and the athletic program, sponsoring college assemblies and dances, granting charters to new organizations and electing students to represent the college in off-campus activities.

Students may participate in the meetings, and ideas are accepted through the suggestion box in Lower Center Hall. The success of the Board is the result of mutual planning and cooperation.

Acknowledgements

The privilege of being editor of this book has brought me great pleasure, in that I have met and worked with the most wonderful people I have ever known. That which should have been a task has been enjoyment. Over one hundred of our own people have contributed their valuable time and talent in compiling this, your yearbook. I think that you will join with me in thanking them for a difficult job superbly done.

I'd also like to thank Mr. Harry Ronnie and Mr. Nicholas Ickes of Colyer-Roux Printing Company for the good work they and their company have done in publishing our book.

The beautiful photography is the work of that boy photographer Irving Nudnick Lloyd.

I'm sure the entire staff will join with me thanking Mr. Pettigrove for his guidance and the many hours he spent working with us.

The book has been created for you; I hope you have enjoyed it.
